SIM313 : Microcontrollers

The Microcontrollers course is a practical electronics course for any engineer developing peripherals for simulation. The course presents an understanding of basic electronics and covers theory, history, soldering, and components for USB sensing and control from a PC.

Credits 4