MBG541 : Game Development Frameworks

Students in the Game Development Frameworks Course will connect mobile and micro-console technologies to various platforms and operating systems to analyze how they influence the design, functionality, and delivery of a game. Students will also evaluate the limits various technologies place on game design, with special attention given to hardware resource contention and software stack limitations.

Credits 3