

MDV4201 : Advanced iOS Development

In the Advanced iOS Development course, students will learn advanced declarative programming. This will enable students to create fully reactive and accessible mobile applications with hardware integration providing an enhanced user experience.

Credits 4