

MDV4301 : Android Development III

In the Android Development III course, students will construct applications that utilize the Android software-development kit to create feature-rich mobile experiences. The course focuses on code optimization and extensibility as well as application scalability within a diverse mobile landscape.

Credits 4