

CTI4421 : Distributed Data

In the Distributed Data course, students will learn how to utilize cloud storage and APIs, replicate data through remote storage, and utilize federated systems. Students will conduct industry analysis to understand current best practices for the use and performance of distributed systems, APIs, and federated identity systems. Students will learn how to solve and manage data-distribution problems across multiple platforms and determine the effectiveness of their solutions.

Credits 3