

COS630 : Data Visualization and Extended Reality

The Data Visualization and Extended Reality course explores techniques and tools for analyzing and visualizing large data sets. Students will gain practice developing robust statistical models and understanding probability theory in order to create accurate simulations of data. Students will explore approaches for interactive data and visual representation and work on implementing an interactive visualization in extended reality.

Credits 3