COS349 : Project and Portfolio IV: Computer Science

The Project and Portfolio IV: Computer Science course combines hands-on learning experiences with summative and formative portfolio assessments. In this course, students will apply knowledge of human-centered development to create a data-visualization tool. Students will apply knowledge of data integration, visualization approaches, software testing, and usability to build a coherent and user-friendly application that makes data more accessible to the user.
Credits 3