

MPR3113 : Music Genres

The Music Genres course studies the stylistic traits of various historical genres and the programming skills vital to their successful realization. Composers who can produce music in many styles have more variety and potential to offer their clients. Students will build these foundational competencies by arranging and producing song fragments that make use of specific genre attributes.

Credits 4