

BUL2100 : Business Law

The Business Law course provides an overview of general business practices, including entity formation, insurance, taxes, and accounting. Students will study the laws protecting intellectual property in relation to protecting their own work and legally incorporating the works of others. Students will also study the law and practices of contracts and negotiations. All concepts are explored through legal case studies and applied business projects.

Credits 4