

ENC1102 : English Composition II

The English Composition II course builds on the competencies acquired in English Composition I and guides students in refining their writing process. This course prepares students to analyze and respond to their own work and the work of peers while focusing on form and technique in their writing and revision efforts. Students will cultivate their knowledge of information literacy, gain experience with critical analysis, and form valid aesthetic judgments about writing. Students will develop proficiency in the rhetorical process while examining the craft of creative nonfiction.
