

FLM280 : Fundamentals of Production I

The Fundamentals of Production I course introduces students to the production process, including preproduction and production workflows. In the preproduction phase of the course, elements of planning, scheduling, and logistics are explored as they relate to various types of production formats and individual project needs. In the production phase, students will focus on completion of a shoot with an emphasis on set etiquette, safety, and collaboration.

Credits 4