

MDM690 : Thesis: Presentation of Design Solution

This course simulates the conditions of a professional working environment in which each student is required to make an online presentation of their thesis project to a panel of professionals. Using established criteria and guidelines, students in the Thesis: Presentation of Design Solution Course will present their projects and explain how their research, preliminary investigations, and applications contributed to the process used to arrive at their final design solutions.

Credits 5