

MUB4716 : Music Supervision

In the Music Supervision course, students will learn how to serve as a creative liaison between the music industry and the visual-media industries, including film, television, video games, and advertising. Students will develop their ability to determine the musical vision, tone, and style that best suit a given multimedia project. Students will learn to identify, secure, and supervise music-related talent, including composers, songwriters, recording artists, musicians, and producers. They will also learn how to effectively communicate and negotiate with talent representation to obtain necessary clearances.
