

SIM4175 : Simulation and Visualization Environments

There are many and varied elements involved in the way a simulation environment or modeled data is visualized. The Simulation and Visualization Environments course will touch on the fundamental elements of the environmental aspect of a simulation and visualization, including the differences between various implementation approaches such as virtual reality and augmented reality.

Credits 3